

Erie in Gala Attire to Observe the 100th Anniversary of Perry's Victory

Pennsylvania Town First of Lake Ports to Celebrate Centenary—Thousands of Visitors Present.

Erie, Pa., July 5.—Beautifully decorated with bunting and flowers, the city of Erie presents a delightful spectacle in preparation for the centennial celebration of the battle of Lake Erie, which will be inaugurated tomorrow by a "Peace Sunday" and continue every afternoon and evening throughout the week, closing on Saturday night. An elaborate program has been arranged for the entertainment of the thousands of visitors who already are on the scene and the thousands more who will arrive tomorrow and the following days.

The coming celebration in this city is but one of the many events arranged to fittingly commemorate the great naval battle of the War of 1812. Throughout the summer several celebrations are scheduled at various points along the lake bearing a historical relationship to the battle. The list of celebrations will probably close with the dedication of the Perry Memorial now nearing completion on South Bass Island, near the western end of Lake Erie. The celebrations will also be in the nature of commemorations of a hundred years peace between English speaking nations.

Peace Sunday Today.
Tomorrow has been designated as Peace Sunday, and at 11 o'clock special services will be held in all the churches in the city, according to their own ideas of celebrating the hundred years peace between England and the United States. At 2:30 in the afternoon there will be a parade, terminating in a mass meeting before the reviewing stand at Perry Square, where an invocation will be offered by Bishop Israel and a benediction by Bishop Fitz Maurice. The children of the Sunday schools will be dressed and seated in such a manner, on a huge stand erected for the purpose, as to form a living American flag. Patriotic and sacred songs will be rendered by the children, led by numerous bands.

For the remaining days of the week there are no events scheduled for the forenoon hours, giving the visitors an opportunity to visit the stores and other commercial attractions of the city. The merchants have arranged a mid-summer style show, which will be held every morning throughout the week. The old Du Pont powder wagon, which was used for the transportation of ammunition in the war of 1812, is making an overland trip from the Du Pont works in Wilmington, Del., and is scheduled to arrive in Erie at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon, when a reception in its honor will take place. It is to be escorted by a detachment of the naval force of Pennsylvania from the U. S. S. Wolverine, the oldest iron vessel in existence today, built in Erie in 1844.

The National Guard State encampment has been arranged for the week of the celebration, the camp being pitched just outside the city. Special events have been arranged at the camp for the week, and the guard moving in at 7 o'clock will doubtless draw many spectators.

Ship to Sail Again.
At 5 p. m. a leading citizen of the city, impersonating Commodore Perry, will sail into the harbor on Perry's flagship, the Niagara, which has been raised from the bottom of Misery Bay, where it lay for almost a hundred years, and restored. The Niagara will be moored at the public wharf and will remain there until the end of the week. Mayor Stern of Erie will deliver an address of welcome to the "Commodore" at Perry Square and present to him the keys of the city. Following the ceremony there will be a hand concert in Perry Square, after which the automobile parade will be held, in which hundreds of beautifully decorated and illuminated automobiles will appear. The parade will be followed by the powder wagon and of "Commodore Perry" the day will be known as Reception Day.

Tuesday will be Mothers' and Children's Day. The principal feature of the afternoon will be the parade of 12,000 school children. This will consist of a pageant in miniature by the children, giving a view of life as lived by our forefathers and each succeeding generation down to the present time.

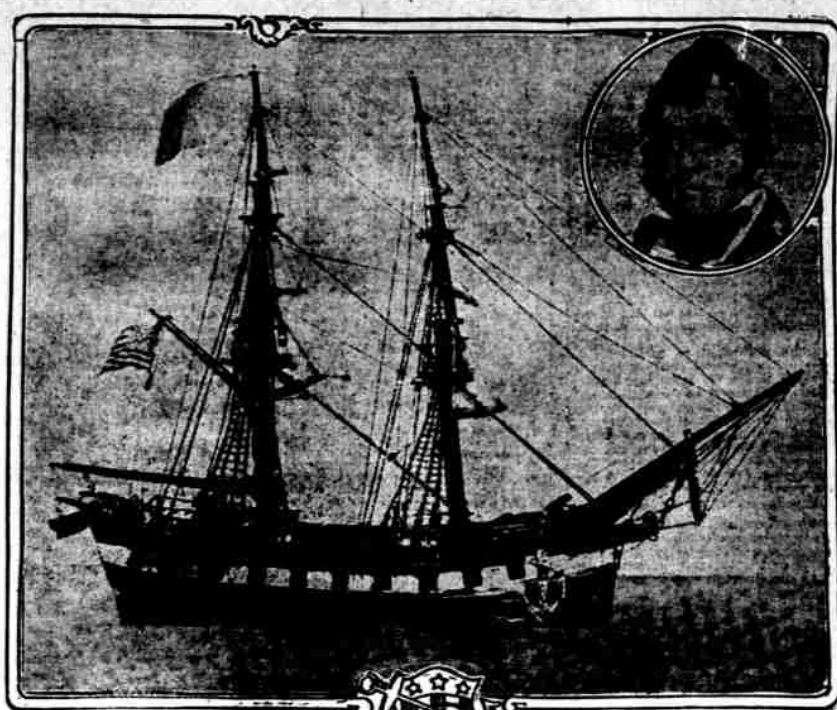

In the evening a band concert, followed by a pageant parade, will take place. Eight thousand dollars has been expended on the decorations for the boats and structures. The pageant committee has been busy for weeks, and promises some interesting and novel features for the pageant.

Governors to Attend.
Wednesday has been designated as Governors' Day, and arrangements have been made to entertain Gov. Tener of Pennsylvania, with his staff, and Governors from at least eight other States. In the afternoon there will be a military parade, comprising 5,000 soldiers of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, the Naval Militia of the State, and the Highland Cadets, to be reviewed by Gov. Tener and the visiting Governors.

At 2:30 in the evening the Highland Cadets will give an exhibition drill, followed by a fireworks display. Pictures in fire of President Wilson, Gov. Tener, Mayor Stern of Erie, and other distinguished men will appear, as well as a monster picture of the battle of Lake Erie, 300 feet long. There also will be hydroaeroplane flights on the bay on this and subsequent days.

Naval Day will be celebrated on Thursday, starting with a naval parade in the afternoon, to be reviewed by Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels. Following the parade, boat races will be held on the bay, in which yachts, motorboats, and naval training ships will compete. The crews of the training ships will take part in the parade and races, their hands furnishing music for both occasions.

In the evening there will be a massed band concert in Perry Square followed by a naval sham battle on the bay, depicting the battle of Lake Erie.

THE NIAGARA.

Commodore Perry's flagship at the famous battle of Lake Erie. Perry went into the battle on the Lawrence, but after the British guns had practically shot the ship from under him he was transferred to the Niagara, from the deck of which he sent the famous message to Gen. Harrison. "We have met the enemy and they are ours." (The photograph taken shortly after his famous victory.)

out of the harbor, as she did a hundred years ago. After leaving Erie she will visit other lake ports and participate in commemorative celebrations.

Perry's Sword on Exhibition.
During the week of celebration the sword used by Perry at the battle will be on exhibition, as well as a brace of pistols, and his flag inscribed "Don't Give up the Ship." The sword has been lent by Perry Belmont, of New York, a grandson of Commodore Perry, to the city of Erie. The flag is the property of the government. Commodore Perry, in an unsuccessful attempt to conquer Upper Canada, and Gen. Hull had surrendered at Detroit. The brig Adams, of 150 tons, the only war vessel on the lakes flying the American flag in 1812, had been captured. The British had only to use their fleet of five vessels to effect a landing on the southern shores of the lake and march inland to the heart of the State. Gen. Harrison was in command of the Northwestern army, with headquarters at Sandusky, but it was a well-known fact that he would be unable to check the advance of the British, once they started south. A fleet was necessary to guard the southern shores of the lake and endeavor to drive the British from Lake Erie.

Trees Felled: Made Into Boats.
Capt. Dobbin, commander of a merchant vessel plying the lake, had been captured by the British and released, after which he carried the first official news of the surrender of Detroit to President Madison at Washington. Dobbin explained the situation on Lake Erie and was commissioned to return to his native town of Erie and superintend the building of an American fleet. Work was begun in October of 1812 and with only one ship carpenter, picked up at Buffalo, and the aid of house carpenters and any one who could handle an ax, saw, or hammer, trees were felled and the boats constructed.

In 1811, Oliver Hazard Perry, then a lieutenant from Rhode Island, ran the Revenge on shore at Watch Hill, R. I., and wrecked her in a storm. He was tried by court-martial, but acquitted. He failed to get a command when the war of 1812 broke out. He later applied to Commodore Chauncey and was ordered to report at Erie. Perry reported at Erie where the work of building the fleet was in progress. In May, of 1812, he and Capt. Dobbin went down to Lake Ontario, leaving Commander Taylor in charge of the building at Erie. Fort George fell and the British evacuated the Niagara River front. Perry purchased five vessels lying below Black Rock, the brig Caladenia, schooner Somers, sloop-Trippe and the schooners Ohio and Amelia, each carrying one and two twenty-four and twelve pound guns, and started with this flotilla to join the fleet under construction at Erie. The British fleet heard of this move of Perry's and took steps to intercept him. The British squadron at that time was made up of the Queen Charlotte with seventeen guns, Lady Provest with thirteen guns, the Hunter with ten guns, Little Bell with three guns and the Chippewa with one gun. It was a fog on the Eastern end of the Lake. Perry passed the British fleet at a distance of about five miles, neither fleet being aware of the other's presence.

Perry arrived at Erie in the latter part of June and rushed the work on the boats being built there. By the middle of August the boats had been completed, armed and partly manned. Perry could not get more than 30 men to man his little fleet. He set sail for Sandusky and reported ready for action to General Harrison at that point on August 17.

The fleet consisted of the following vessels, their respective commanders and armament: Lawrence, flagship, eighteen thirty-two-pound cannon and two long twelve-pounders; Commodore O. H. Perry; Niagara, same armament; Capt. James D. Elliot; Caladenia, three long twelve-pounders; Purrer Humphrey Hagrath; Ariel, four long twelve-pounders; Lieut. John Packett; Trippe, one long thirty-two-pounder; Lieut. A. H. M. Conkling; Somers, one long twenty-four-pounder; and one long twelve-pounder. Sailing Master Thomas C. Almy; Scorpion, one long twenty-four-pounder and one long twelve-pounder; Champlain, Ohio, one long twenty-four-pounder; Sailing Master Daniel Dobbin; Porcupine, one long thirty-two-pounder; Midshipman George Senat.

In the meanwhile the British fleet, which had returned to Malden, at the mouth of the Detroit River, had been reinforced by the launching of the Detroit. Perry recruited fifty Kentuckians who had joined Harrison's army, and having had experience on the Ohio River boats, they served very well. His next move was to sail for Malden, where he found the British fleet in the shelter of the fort at Bar Point. To attack there would have been disaster, so Perry returned to Sandusky. Another reason for not making the attack was that Perry and several of his officers were sick at the time, having encountered heavy storms on the lake.

At the end of a week the fleet again sailed to Malden and endeavored to draw the British out into the lake. However, the British preferred the shelter of the fort, and Perry sailed back to Put-in-Bay. While here word was received by way of three escaped prisoners from Malden that the British were preparing to sail for Long Point, directly across the lake from Erie. On the evening of September 5 Perry held a conference with his officers on board the Lawrence, and showed them his battle plan, bearing the inscription, "Don't give up the Ship." These were the words uttered by Capt. Lawrence, of Revolutionary fame. Perry explained that the holding of this flag was the signal to engage in battle.

Sights British at Dawn.
Perry sailed out into the lake and at dawn on September 10 sighted the British fleet, directly northwest of Put-in-Bay. Perry sailed directly for the British, and at about 11:45 the Detroit, flag-
